MercerTrigiani Listed as 2012 Best Work Place in Virginia

Alexandria, Virginia (February 20, 2012) . . . MercerTrigiani law firm has been named as one of the "2012 Best Places to Work in Virginia" by Virginia Business magazine. The Alexandria-based law firm joins 70 other statewide companies being honored for providing best places of employment in Virginia, benefiting the state's economy and cultivating the work force.

MercerTrigiani, a boutique real estate law firm with offices in Alexandria and Richmond, employs eight attorneys, three paralegals and 10 staff members and was the one law firm included in the small company category employing less than 100 employees.

Virginia Business hired Best Companies Group to manage the survey, conduct analysis and determine final rankings. Companies from across the state were invited to complete a two-part survey. Part one of the survey evaluated each company's workplace policies, practices, philosophy, systems and demographics. The second part of the survey measured individual employee experiences. The combined scores identified the top organizations and yielded the final ranking.

To be eligible for the ranking, companies had to meet the following criteria:

- ∞ Operating as a for-profit or not-for-profit business or government entity
- ∞ Holding a publicly or privately held business status
- ∞ Occupying a business location within Virginia
- ∞ Operating as a business for a minimum of one year
- ∞ Employing a minimum of 15 employees working in Virginia.

The ranking of the second annual "Best Places to Work in Virginia" was published in the February 2012 issue of Virginia Business.
