Industry Group Presents Award of Excellence to Trigiani

Alexandria, VA (June 1, 2010) . . . The Community Associations Institute (CAI) presented Lucia Anna “Pia” Trigiani with the Award of Excellence in Designations during the organization’s annual volunteer awards ceremony held April 30.

The award is presented annually to the individual who has made significant contributions in advancing CIA’s designation programs and ethical standards. Trigiani currently serves as the first chair of the Virginia Common Interest Community Board responsible for overseeing Virginia’s common interest community manager licensure program.

“Members like Pia Trigiani make everything and anything possible,” said CAI Chief Executive Officer Thomas M. Skiba. “Her tireless efforts on behalf of CAI, industry professionalism and sound public policy are indispensable. Pia epitomizes the kind of volunteer leadership that has made CAI the organization it is today.”

CAI is a national industry group that is dedicated to serving community association volunteer leaders, professional managers, community management firms and other professionals and companies that provide services to community associations.
